About Greenwood

Greenwood was founded in 1982 and is a private 501(c)(3) organization. It is not a government agency, nor does it receive funding from national wildlife organizations. The essential services we provide depend on the generosity of businesses and private citizens.

As the largest rehabilitation center of our kind in Colorado, we offer high-quality treatment for injured or sick wildlife and hand-rearing of orphaned baby mammals and birds, leading to the release of native wildlife back to their natural habitats. Greenwood treats nearly all species at its facility, from hummingbirds and cottontails to coyotes and pelicans.

We also provide valuable learning experiences for children and adults alike through on-going education and outreach programs, advising the public on humane solutions to human-wildlife interactions.

The average cost for each animal we care for is $320. In 2013, more than 2,300 wildlife came through our doors.

Benefits

Along with a portion of your donation to Wild Night for Wildlife being tax deductible and a wonderful night on the town, you will truly make a difference for the animals in our care and promote a very important cause in our community.
